Yes Chef! Dev LogBook
December 2024

2nd December - Mert Terkuran
- Expo was selected as the Frontend platform over Vite after much consideration.

4th December - Entire Group
- Workload for the Analysis and Requirements Report was distributed as such:
  - Introduction, Dynamic Models, Constraints, Standards: Mert Emre Yamalı
  - Proposed System, Use Case Model, Object and Class Model: Serhan Turan
  - Functional Requirements, Nonfunctional Requirements, Scenarios: İsmail Barış Sunar, Ulaş Keskin
  - Mock-ups, Other Analysis Elements except constraints and standards: Mert Terkuran.

7th December - Mert Emre Yamalı, Serhan Turan
- A basic backend was developed.
- Basic routes and API's for registering and logging in were developed.

9th December - Ulaş Keskin, Mert Terkuran
- Backend hosting was moved to AWS.
- MongoDB was connected to the backend for proper functionality of persistent data.

10th December - Entire Group
- Fourth and final progress meeting.
- The new tech stack and progress was discussed with the instructor Mert Bıçakçı.
- Got detailed feedback on our progress,
- Discussed potential investment opportunities.
- Got information about the Demo process of the project.

12th December - Entire Group
- Finalized the Analysis and Requirements Report

20th December -Barış Sunar, Mert Terkuran
- Frontend of the login, register and main menu was implemented.
- Backend was adapted to new changes in frontend.
- Debugging in frontend and backend.

21th December - Serhan Turan, Barış Sunar, Mert Terkuran
- Frontend of the recipe viewing,blog and profile was implemented.
- Backend of recipes to show them in the main menu was implemented.
- New UI elements were added to the project such as animations and gradients.
- Routes were debugged to fix page ordering.

22nd December - Mert Emre Yamalı, Ulaş Keskin,Serhan Turan, Barış Sunar, Mert Terkuran
- Prepared a detailed presentation for the final Demo presentation.
- Recipe viewing concept was finalized and the project was built for android and hosted by AWS and MongoDb.

24th December - Entire Group
- Presented our current situation with the project to the instructors Mert Bıçakçı and Atakan Erdem as well as our supervisor Uğur Doğrusöz.
- Presented both a written presentation explaining our market analysis, current progress, and future plans still under development.
- Answered questions, got feedback.